Computer Human ? South Produces 67 % of U.S. Pulpwood

Last August The Star bought one of two leased items, but for the last 90 days has continued to receive leasing bills for both articles. Finally we protested to the Hope office—and heard an airtight alibi.

It seems the billing is handled by their Little Rock office, and the Little Rock office maintains a computer. The computer makes out the bills. Commuters are "programmed" by recording tapes. You say on the tape what you want the computer to say and then feed the tape into the computer's "library." Ask it a question and you will get the last reply that was fed into it.

The computer that fouled me up wasn't stupid. It was just 90 days late getting the word.

Some people are as tardy as that computer. Which raises the question: Are computers human ?

The Star having two computers of its own I am able to respond with a firm "No."

Computers are recording machines. If the people handling them don't get the word then the machine doesn't get the word either.

Computers would be infallible but for one thing :They are handled by people—and who among you has the nerve to speak up and say people are infallible ?

Here's an item that will interest Southwest Arkansans, particularly those who grow, harvest, or deal in pulpwood:

The Nov. 25 bulletin of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association, Chattanooga, of which The Star is a member, reports that for the second consecutive year the South's forests yielded more than one billion dollars worth of pulpwood in 1971.

That is 67 per cent of the nation's total pulpwood harvest.

The same bulletin quoted the Southern Forest Institute, Atlanta, Ga., as saying the perpetual cut idea was backed by the planting of nearly 470 million seedlings in 1971.

Gone are the days when lumbermen set up a community, cut all the area's timber, and then departed leaving behind them a ghost town.

Contributing to the South's dominant position in pulpwood production was the late Dr. Herty's discovery in a Savannah (Ga.) chemical laboratory during the 1930s that newsprint, the coarse white paper used by newspapers, could be manufactured from Southern pine trees not more than 12 years old. Formerly it was thought pine contained too much resin, and pine was used for kraft paper where resin-stain didn't matter.

Before Dr. Herty's time all U.S.-used newsprint came from the spruce forests of Canada and the Northern States. But spruce takes years to reach marketable size. Southern pine grows much more rapidly—therefore Dr. Herty's discovery set up a whole new newsprint industry in the South.

The first pine-using newsprint mill was established at Lufkin, Texas, by the Southland Paper Mills, Inc., and began production in 1940. The Star holds a 1940 charter contract with that mill. Now there are pine newsprint mills all over the South.

I recall that after Dr. Herty made his first successful batch of pulpwood it was turned into newsprint and used in demonstration runs by a group of Georgia newspapers. I collected copies of each edition and put them on The Star Building's bulletin board.

Lumbermen from all over this area came to see that display.

They were looking at what promised to be an economic miracle for the South.

A miracle that came true.

Star completes payments on $96,900 press

By coincidence Clarence Chapman, Jr., the man who sold Star Publishing Co. its 20-page $96,900 rotary offset press Sept. 13, 1965, called at The Star office this morning the very day the newspaper paid off the last of the seven-year serial debt of $91,223.16.

In 1965 The Star paid down $12,980.00 on the initial contract of $89,900.00, which was reduced $5,000.00 on trade-in of the old flatbed press, leaving a balance due of $71,920.00. With 7 per cent interest added the seven-year contract totaled $91,223.16. The serial was divided into 84 monthly payments of $1,085.99—and The Star mailed the last two installments today to James Talcott, Inc., New York City, a firm specializing in financing industrial installations. Payment was a month ahead of schedule, the final maturity being Jan. 1, 1973.

While the original press order cost $89,900.00 The Star added two cash items—$2,000.00 for static eliminators, and $5,000.00 for ink agitators—which raised the total price of the press to $96,900.00.

Washburn called this a historic moment because he said it marked the second time in his life he had canceled the mortgage serial debt on a press.

He recalled that when the late C. E. Palmer of Texarkana and he consolidated Ed. McCorkle's Star of Hope, evening, and D. A. Gean's Hope Daily Press, morning, in a 50-50 partnership in Star Publishing Co. Mr. Gean had a brand new Duplex 8-page flatbed press—on which Star Publishing Co. paid the first serial note. The flatbed press cost $8,000.00, with a balance due of $6,500.00 and monthly notes of $85.00.

Washburn said he and Palmer had more trouble meeting $85.00 monthly notes back in those depression days than covering today's monthly notes of $1,085.99.

The editor noted how inflation has changed the industrial equipment picture in seven short years. In 1965 The Star's press—the fourth offset machine to be installed in Arkansas, which is now completely "offset" except for the largest cities—cost $89,900.00. The price of the same machine today, as reported by Sales Engineer Clarence Chapman, is $109,949—an increase in seven years of $20,049.00, or 22.7 per cent.

Washburn expressed his thanks to subscribers and advertisers for their loyal support which have created The Star's $184,000.00 modern printing plant. The old flatbed press ran 36 years in The Star's plant, and is still running in the weekly plant that bought it, in Monticello, Miss. The new press, more than 11 times as expensive, should run even longer, Washburn concluded.

VN emissary to meet with Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon scheduled a meeting with a personal emissary from South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu Wednesday to discuss Vietnam cease-fire negotiations.

The negotiations between presidential security adviser Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho are scheduled to resume in Paris on Monday.

Nixon is to confer with Nguyen Phu Duc, described by White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler as Thieu's special representative.

In Saigon, meanwhile, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker provided Thieu with a report on Kissinger's most recent meetings with President Nixon.

Kissinger met with Nixon twice Monday, but Ziegler declined to say what was discussed, except to warn that the current break in the Paris talks is no cause for pessimism.

Duc's meeting was requested by the South Vietnamese. The top Thieu aide flew from Saigon on Tuesday, and was to meet with Nixon at either the White House or the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., Ziegler said.

A possible topic might be a report from Saigon that Thieu is seeking direct talks with the North Vietnamese before any peace agreement is signed.

Thieu has dispatched his closest adviser, Hoang Duc Nha to Paris, where sources said he would deal directly with Kissinger when the American returns Sunday for the new round of discussions. Thieu wants Nha to sit in when the secret talks resume, the sources said.

Also in Paris, North Vietnamese negotiator Tho met with Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, chief of the Viet Cong delegation to the public Paris peace talks.

Rep. Pryor discusses his future

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Rep. David Pryor, D-Ark., who unsuccessfully opposed Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., in the summer primaries, said Monday that, at this time, he would not oppose Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., in the 1974 election.

"I think at this point I could list two very good reasons why I would not oppose him," Pryor said here as he was closing down his office.

Pryor said one reason was "we are very good personal friends, and two, he has made tremendous contributions to his state and nation and should be given the chance to continue in office."

Pryor said Fulbright "thinks about 10 to 20 years ahead of most of us."

Those considering a possible race against Fulbright should realize he is "quite a political scrapper and no pushover," Pryor said. "He is a very controversial man as we all know, but he has good political instincts."

It has been speculated that Gov. Dale Bumpers might oppose the senator in 1974. Pryor said Bumpers was "very capable" but that he could not speculate on the governor's chances of defeating Fulbright.

Many friends of the congressman attended a reception for Pryor, who said he would begin his law practice in Little Rock in January. He also said he was looking at "two or three" business ventures.

He said there was a possibility he might teach a college political science course a day each week.

As for his future political plans, Pryor said he would "play it by ear."

"I have no idea about future political races or challenges that may be in the offing," he said.

Revenue-sharing funds to arrive in near future

Within the next week, Hempstead County, the City of Hope, and other municipalities within the county should receive the first installments of federal revenue-sharing—payments of "turn-back funds" which will eventually total $244,906 for 1972.

According to a booklet — "Federal Revenue Sharing" — prepared by the Arkansas Municipal League, Hempstead County will receive $180,500 for its share for 1972; Hope will receive $55,698; and other municipalities in the county will receive $8,710.

Federal revenue-sharing is retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year; the checks scheduled to arrive here within the next few days represent partial payment for the year — for the first six months. The second installment for 1972 is scheduled to be mailed sometime in January.

In comparison, Nevada County will receive $144,000, Prescott, the county seat has been slated to receive $36,500 and other municipalities will receive a total of $6,866.

The total amount to be received by the state for 1972 is approximately $55,000,000. The estimated amount for each year through 1976 is $60,500,000.

The total cost of the revenue-sharing program has been set at $5.3 billion.

Gerald Keith, city manager, told the Star Monday that the city's share of revenue-sharing funds will not "be spent on recurrent expenses, such as salaries."

The President could cut off the funds at any time, Keith said, "so the city has to plan wisely which way to spend the money."

Keith mentioned, but declined to pinpoint, several projects that might evolve from the use of the federal funds — refurbishing of the city hall and allocating more space for the city police department, improvements at the city park and possible purchase of additional land for use by the city.

When asked about the county's plans for use of the financial windfall, County Judge Finis Odom laughed and said: "I bet we can find a place for it."

The place? Roads, Odom said. "We're going to try to blacktop a lot of roads with that money."

Weinberger, Richardson chosen

Nixon makes 2 appointments

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Nixon announced today Elliot Richardson will be nominated as the new secretary of Defense and Caspar Weinberger, now director of the Office of Management and Budget, will be named to succeed Richardson as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

At the same time, Nixon said Roy Ash, president of Litton Industries, will be nominated to succeed Weinberger as the Cabinet-level director of OMB.

MELVIN LAIRD

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has submitted his resignation and plans to return to private life after four years as chief of the Pentagon.

The announcement of the first changes in Nixon's second-term Cabinet was read to newsmen by press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler in a helicopter hangar here at the presidential mountain retreat.

Richardson, 52, has served as HEW secretary since June of 1970. Before that he was Nixon's undersecretary of State.

Weinberger, 55, became OMB director in May but earlier had been deputy director of the agency since its creation in mid-1970.

Ash, 54, was chairman of Nixon's Advisory Council on Government Reorganization created in 1969. The recommendations of that panel called, among other things, for the creation of the Office of Management and Budget which he now will head.

Ziegler indicated that Richardson, Weinberger and Ash would have little to say to newsmen because their nominations are subject to confirmation by the Senate.

Nixon, who wants to draw Cabinet members closer to the White House, disclosed Monday that Weinberger will be leaving the management-budget post and will get another top position.

The new secretary of Defense would be Nixon's first Cabinet change for his second term. He said he hopes to announce all major personnel changes by Dec. 15.

Whoever is appointed as new secretary of defense and to other Cabinet jobs in the next four years, Nixon told newsmen Monday, they will be in "closer contact with the White House and, of course, with the President himself."

Nixon, who has devoted several days since his landslide reelection Nov. 7 to administration personnel changes, told newsmen that Laird would return to private life rather than take a government post in the second Nixon term.

The President Monday also accepted with "special regret" the resignation of George Romney, secretary of Housing and Urban Development. He said Romney, New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally would not figure in new administration appointments.

Laird and Romney had previously announced their intentions of leaving their Cabinet posts at the end of Nixon's first term.

But much of the President's 21-minute talk to the dozen newsmen at his Catoctin Mountain retreat here Monday seemed aimed at discouraging speculation that he would rely less on his Cabinet in his second term than during his first four years.

"While there will be cuts in personnel around the government," Nixon said Monday, "the biggest cuts will be made in the White House staff itself."

IRA leader's condition is deteriorating

DUBLIN (AP) — Sean MacStiofain, the jailed chief of staff of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, was in the 10th day of his hunger and thirst strike today, and the Roman Catholic archbishop of Dublin reported his condition was deteriorating rapidly.

Official spokesmen said they had no information on MacStiofain's condition, but there was no indication that the doctors at the army hospital were trying to force-feed him intravenously.

The government in a statement Monday night said the matter of forced feeding was up to the doctors.

Archbishop Dermot Ryan visited MacStiofain in a Dublin hospital Monday at the latter's request shortly before he was moved by helicopter to a more secure military hospital at The Curragh, the army headquarters west of Dublin. Eight IRA gunmen tried Sunday to rescue him from the Dublin hospital.

The former archbishop of Dublin, Dr. John McQuaid, also visited MacStiofain Monday and gave him absolution. He had not been given the last rites of the church yet, however.

"He is very very weak physically but mentally appears alert and strong," MacStiofain's attorney, Myles Shevlin, told newsmen. "I have been told by a doctor that death can come quite suddenly."

MacStiofain vowed after his arrest to go without food and water until he was freed or died. Instead of freedom, he got a six-month jail sentence Saturday for his IRA activities.

Although the IRA is battling in Northern Ireland to unite that British province with the Irish Republic, the guerrilla army is also outlawed in the republic. The Dublin government is stepping up action against its members and has jailed more than 100 this year.

All police leave was canceled in expectation of demonstrations Wednesday when the Dail, Ireland's parliament, debates a government bill to make conviction of IRA suspects easier.

The bill provides that a senior police officer's statement that an accused person is an IRA member constitutes conclusive evidence of guilt. Thus instead of the government having to prove membership in the IRA, the accused would have to prove he was not to escape conviction.

Newspaper says Bormann paid off Juan Peron

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Express reported today that Martin Bormann found refuge in Argentina in 1948 by paying $200 million to then-dictator Juan D. Peron. But a spokesman for Peron said earlier that Argentina's former ruler knew nothing about Hitler's wartime deputy.

The Express published the second of a five-part series of articles by spy expert Ladislas Farago, who in the first article claimed Bormann is still alive at the age of 72 and has been living since early October on a ranch in northern Argentina owned by the Krupp family of West Germany.

Bormann was seen in Berlin in the final days of the war, and afterward there were unconfirmed reports that he died in the fighting, died a prisoner in Russia and escaped to South America.

Periodically he is reported seen in one South American country or another, but so far there has been no proof that he is still alive.

Farago in today's article in the Express reported:

Bormann, realizing World War II would eventually be lost, secretly arranged for German ships and a submarine to deliver a huge treasure to Argentina in the final stages of the war in Europe.

The treasure — currency, jewels, platinum, art works and gold that was mostly taken from the teeth of Nazi concentration camp victims — was deposited in four Argentine banks under the name of Eva Duarte Ibarguren, Peron's mistress who became his wife in 1945.

Mrs. Peron made a trip to Europe in 1947, met Bormann in Rome and helped arrange his flight to Argentina. He arrived in Argentina by ship on May 17, 1948, with a passport issued to Eliezer Goldstein by the Vatican office for stateless persons.

By the end of 1948, Peron surrendered a fourth of the treasure to Bormann, retaining nearly $200 million for himself and his wife.

The Argentine federal police said Monday they are checking out Farago's reports, but they expressed doubt that they were true. The West German justice ministry also expressed "extreme reservations" about the stories. But a spokesman said the ministry would investigate the possibilities of extraditing Bormann if he was found.

Laird sets draft quota

By ROBERT A. DORKIN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today that fewer than 10,000 men will be drafted in the next six months before Selective Service is phased out June 30 and the military shifts to an all-volunteer force.

Laird said there would be no draft calls in January and that inductions will be spread out between February and June 30.

At an unscheduled news conference, the secretary said he was confident of a smooth transition to an all-volunteer Army but he said he still expected some difficulties in recruiting enough men for the National Guard and Reserves once the pressure of the draft is ended.

The secretary said the armed forces had hoped to begin offering enlistment bonuses for the Guard and Reserves by Feb. 1 but Congress' failure to approve this program will not make this possible.

AMA in trouble

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The American Medical Association is in trouble because of "far too much defection from our ranks" by disillusioned members, a doctor says.

Dr. Jack Schreiber of Canfield, Ohio, a delegate to the organization's biannual national convention, declared in an address Monday to the AMA's Council on Long-Range Planning (CLRP):

"An alarming number of our (AMA) members are turning to unionism, foundations, special societies, other organizations, or just folding up their tents and saying, 'The hell with it!'

"The sadness of it all is that too many of us here today are more worried about our own little power structures and our personal ambitions — and the American Medical Association grows a little less effective."

He led up to these statements by charging that the AMA's top command and its policy-making House of Delegates are not paying enough attention to, or communicating adequately with, the everyday practicing physician.

"I am very proud to be a member of the AMA," said Schreiber, "but I am fearful that, unless we, all of us, especially those of us who sit in the House of Delegates, place the private practice of medicine above everything else, then the AMA could well become nothing more than a social club, and we will have lost our last chance."

But a top AMA official, while conceding that the AMA has launched a virtually unprecedented membership drive in the face of an approximate 12,000 dropouts since 1970, when membership peaked at 168,214, says a substantial increase already appears in prospect.

Search for assailant continues

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Police continued to search today for an unidentified assailant who pulled a gun during a scuffle and wounded five students, one seriously, at Pontiac Central High School.

Witnesses said the shooting Monday occurred after an apparent confrontation between black and white students. It was the first outbreak this year in the once-troubled inner city school with a 30 per cent black student population.

School and police officials, however, tended to dismiss racial tensions as the cause of the incident, viewing it as an isolated flareup.

Sophomore student Timothy Williams, 15, who had been hospitalized in serious condition after being shot in the back, was described in fair condition by Monday night after undergoing surgery.

The other four — two boys and two girls — were released from hospitals later Monday. One girl is black, the other four pupils are white, school officials said.

Lt. James Lafnear, school police counselor, said the scuffling occurred as classes changed. Police said the trouble apparently began when a student identified as Dale Miller, 16, was kicked and shoved by other students in the courtyard.

Authorities said a black youth, believed to be a student, suddenly pulled a .22 or .25 caliber pistol and began shooting in an open courtyard between school buildings.

U.S. trade deficit is reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit was sharply reduced in October, the Commerce Department reports.

The department said not since last January has the difference between what America buys from overseas and what it sells abroad been so small.

The deficit figures made public Monday: $415 million in October, $513.2 million in September and $318.8 last January.

Trade deficits are a measure of how well or how poorly American goods are selling in other countries, as well as a constant reminder of pressures on the value of the dollar worldwide.

The department said exports were up 5 per cent last month to a seasonally adjusted $4.364 billion in value, while imports rose by 2.3 per cent to $4.779 billion.

The United States had a trade deficit of $2 billion in 1971, the first of this century. So far in 1972, the deficit totals $5.2 billion with November and December figures still to come.

Assistant Commerce Department Secretary Harold C. Passer, said the October figures mark a reversal of the two-year trend toward bigger deficits. October was the 13th straight month of trade deficits.

Increases in American exports were recorded last month in chemicals and transportation equipment and other manufactured goods. Oil imports declined slightly from a record high in September, but increases were noted in foreign automobiles, steel and other metals.

The Hope Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America will have its formal installation of officers and induction of new members in the high school auditorium Thursday, November 30, at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Good crowd at service

The Community Thanksgiving Service held Wednesday evening, Nov. 22, at the First Baptist Church drew a record-breaking attendance, according to a report by Rev. Vernon C. Wickliffe, president of the Hope Ministerial Alliance which sponsored the service.

The Hope Kiwanis Club, cooperating with the Ministerial Alliance, distributed handbills Wednesday encouraging the people of the community to attend the services Wednesday night. This accounted for the large attendance, Rev. Wickliffe said. "The Kiwanis Club is to be congratulated for the success of their program," he said.

Facing Winter

Winter weather is hard on most complexions, so be extra careful to keep your face moist and smooth. A hot towel applied to the face will open pores. Then apply your favorite cream (mayonnaise is a good moisturizer), massage upward, then tissue off excess.

It's "Time" For Christmas

It's time for Christmas — and time for the little people to learn to tell time and have fun doing it!

New Little Learners Clock Talk from Sears is a clever talking clock that actually tells what time it is. Santa doesn't have to explain the workings of the little hand and the big hand. Instead, the child himself sets the hands and turns the dial. The battery-operated clock, colorful and gay, clearly tells the time shown on the clock face.

Christmas will be merrier and surely more timely for the little person who finds that Santa has left him the time of day—and night. Clock Talk has one clock face cassette for "hours" and another for "minutes". An adult Santa's helper can show the child how to insert the "hours" cassette into the machine, turn the little blue hand to any hour and press the white button. Won't he be surprised and delighted to hear a voice say clearly, "two o'clock!"

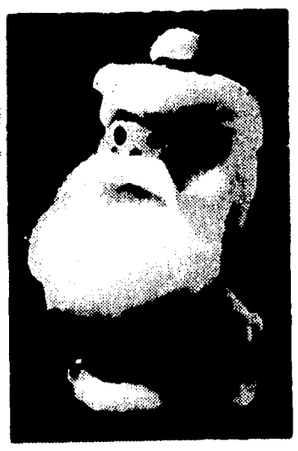

The cassette can be ejected so that the "minutes" cassette can be inserted. The little learner simply turns the big red hand to any five-minute mark, presses the white button and hears the voice tell him the hour and the minutes. The unseen teacher might say, "Twelve twenty-five."

The plastic talking toy has two replaceable record cassettes and uses one battery.

The unit, available at most Sears stores and through the company's Christmas catalog, says it's "time" for Christmas and time for pre-schoolers to learn to tell time the fun way—all by themselves!

Jump dress is new look

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — How do you transform a demure daytime outfit into an elegant evening dress? You wear a jump dress, says Pauline Trigere.

The jump dress, one of Trigere's new spring looks shown at her collection Thursday, is basically a halter dress with a bare back.

A simple navy one, worn over a filmy navy and gold blouse, is ideal for the office. Whip off the blouse and it's bare and elegant—fine for the theater.

Another, older way of using the same costume for day and night was revived in the collection.

Miss Trigere showed a bright green print shirtwaist dress for day and then made it an evening gown by adding a long overskirt.

The designer stuck to skirts, for spring showing only a few pants outfits and those only for evening.

There were lots of wrap coats with matching skirts and a few little bolero jackets over princess and fitted dresses.

Daytime colors were navy, black and white — combined in bold plaids and checks — and a sprinkling of pastel blues and pinks.

Color ran riot, however, in Trigere's evening wear. Her long evening dresses were decollete. Several had scooped necklines off the shoulders, and some were revivals of the elegant Grecian look, with one shoulder bared.

And then there were the so-called "false modesty" gowns. They had males in the audience falling out of their seats until they realized the vast area of seemingly naked skin revealed by the gowns was, in fact, flesh-colored chiffon.

A good example was navy blue chiffon dinner dress, which had a V neckline plunging below the waist. But there was more there than immediately met the eye.

Miss Gardner to wed Mr. Bennett

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Gardner, Jr. announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Virginia O'Neal, to Roger Dean Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Harris of Fort Smith.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl N. O'Neal of Hope. She is attending the University of Arkansas and will graduate in the spring of 1973 with a B.S.B.A. in Banking and Finance.

Mr. Bennett has completed a three year tour in the Army, including eighteen months in Germany. He is a business student at the University of Arkansas and will receive his degree in Marketing in the spring of 1973.

The First Christian Church in Hope, will be the setting for the couples' January 3 wedding.

MR. AND MRS. W.E. WHITE

Couple celebrates 50th wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs W.E. White will be honored at their home at 2207 Garland Avenue, Texarkana, on Dec. 3, from 2: to 4:30 p.m. in observance of their golden wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. White were married on December 23, 1922, at Bodcaw, Ark. Hosts for the occasion will be their children, Mrs. T.O. Tollett of Little Rock, Eld. Farrel W. White of Magnolia, Doris Jean White of Texarkana; and their five grandchildren. Relatives and friends are invited to attend.

Sweater Stretch

The look of the Roaring Twenties returns with extra-long sweaters that stretch all the way down to the thighs and are worn with short skirts.

Slinky Slips

Long, slinky evening dresses can be worn with the new anti-cling long slips. They have deep slits so they can be worn with the latest fashions.

Short Cut

Short hair is back in fashion. Chin-length cuts are especially appealing with classic clothes, snug hats and high fur collars. The most important ingredient, of course, is the cut. Spend the extra money getting a good, professional cut, because you'll spend less time and money keeping your hair in shape.

Winter Wrap

Short wrap coats are the best way to bundle up for the winter. Whether in solid colors or bright plaids, these toppers look great with pants or long skirts.

Crochet class offered

A night time session of crochet class is tentatively planned for Tuesday, Dec. 5, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Douglas Building. Mrs. Alphonso Denham, County Extension agent, will be the instructor.

Interested persons are asked to phone the Extension office, 777-5771, by Nov. 30 to pre-register.

The class is open to anyone interested in learning the art of crochet.

How Casual Is "Casual"?

RAP:

This new guy in town just started working for my Dad. I'm a high school senior. He's getting his degree at evening college. I like him but don't understand his ways.

My folks think he's "correct" and will be good for me, but—well, here's an example:

I invited him to a typical California-type party—you know, the gang getting together at someone's house, everybody bringing food and stuff. I told him it would be "casual"...and he showed up in a sport coat, necktie and bells. So I had to quick run and change into a dress and shoes to save him embarrassment. And we really looked strange among all those jeans. We didn't stay long, though I usually have a great time at these parties.

My mother says he wore "casual" clothes and if more boys would come to the door looking like that, she and Dad would stop worrying so much. I say he was overdressed. What do you say, Sue and Helen? — RELAXED AND COMFORTABLE

R AND C:

You and I know a casual California-type party means jeans, cut-offs, tank tops, maybe bare feet, and you'll feel silly in anything "more formal." Your mother knows it too, but parents always keep hoping... They aren't as high on comfort as we are.

But don't put this guy down for NOT knowing. Maybe he's from a less casual part of the country—and if you moved THERE, your jeans and grubbies would rate as many stares as his sport coat got from your friends.

Why don't you start educating him? —SUE

DEAR R. AND C.:

There's an age difference here that might make this new man uncomfortable at high school parties, no matter what he wears. Why not date him on his level but don't ask him to be part of your crowd? — HELEN

NOTE TO RC'S MOTHER: When in California, do as the Californians do. Don't fight it... You'll never beat the barefoot-teen-in-jeans syndrome. —H.

HEY, RAP:

After getting a lot of flak from the guys back home (who believe every college man has a girl roommate, especially if he makes out all right in high school) I tried an experiment.

I asked five girls, one at a time of course, if they'd share my apartment. Got five turndowns.

They're all good friends of mine. If girls are as liberated as you hear, how come? —ZACH

DEAR ZACH:

Maybe the "rent" was too high. —HELEN

ZACH:

...Or they wanted to stay your friends. —SUE

NOTE FROM BOTH OF US: Or (likely) they compared offers.

RAP:

I broke up with a girl and now she's going with another guy. She said she'd come back to me when I asked, but now she won't. I'm in this gang, you might say the leader. I was going to have some of the guys shake this guy up a little so he'd stay away. Would that be a good way to get her back? —HEAD LEADER

HEAD:

No! Not unless she likes Junior Godfather types. — HELEN AND SUE

Yankees drop Nettles in trading game

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — The New York Yankees made a big hit and the New York Mets completed a double play in the trading game at baseball's winter meetings.

Before the last man was out Monday, 18 players including such big names as Tommie Agee and Graig Nettles had changed teams as the free swinging officials got the 71st annual session off to a rip-roaring start.

Even before the Major League draft led off official business Monday, the Yankees dropped an early-morning bombshell announcement involving Nettles and five others.

The Yanks, badly in need of a slugger, snatched the powerhitting Nettles from the Cleveland Indians along with catcher Jerry Moses for a covey of young hopefuls—catcher-first baseman John Ellis, outfielders Charlie Spikes and Rusty Torres and infielder Jerry Kenney.

"We traded tomorrow for today," New York General Manager Lee MacPhail said. "The fans have waited long enough for a pennant. We want to win it next year—Yankee Stadium's 50th anniversary.

Taking a cue from their cross-town neighbor, the Mets pulled off a double-barreled swap Monday with the Houston Astros and the Indians.

The National Leaguers shipped center fielder Agee to the Astros for outfielder Rich Chiles and pitcher Buddy Harris. The Mets then completed their day's business with the announcement that relief pitcher Phil Hennigan had been obtained from the Indians for minor league pitchers Brent Strom and Bob Rauch.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and Detroit Tigers got into the act with a four-player deal only a few hours later. The Pirates obtained two minor league pitchers, left-hander Jim Foor and right-hander Norm McRae, for outfielder Dick Sharon and an undisclosed minor leaguer.

The trade-happy baseball people weren't finished, however. The Cincinnati Reds then dealt outfielder Bill Voss to the St. Louis Cardinals for pitcher Pat Jacquez.

There was other business Monday, although anyone hardly noticed. The hierarchy of the major and minor leagues held several administrative huddles, including the draft of players from baseball's massive farm system.

The major league draft, as usual, didn't produce much. Only six players were picked in a breezy, half-hour session, including the Philadelphia Phillies' No. 1 selection of pitcher Mike Bruhert from the Mets' Tidewater club in the International League.

The Los Angeles Dodgers also made news during the hectic day with the announcement that Tom Lasorda and Marty Basgall had been added to their coaching staff. They replace Danny Ozark, now the manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, and Roy Hartsfield, who left the Dodgers for a coaching job with the Atlanta Braves.

Flanker Drew Pearson of Tulsa's football team comes from South River, N.J.

The New York Mets have suffered five no-hit games during their National League endeavors.

Sullivan is a Mongoose

Jim Sullivan qualifies as a mongoose.

Writing in the Winnipeg, Canada Tribune, sports writer Vic Grant said:

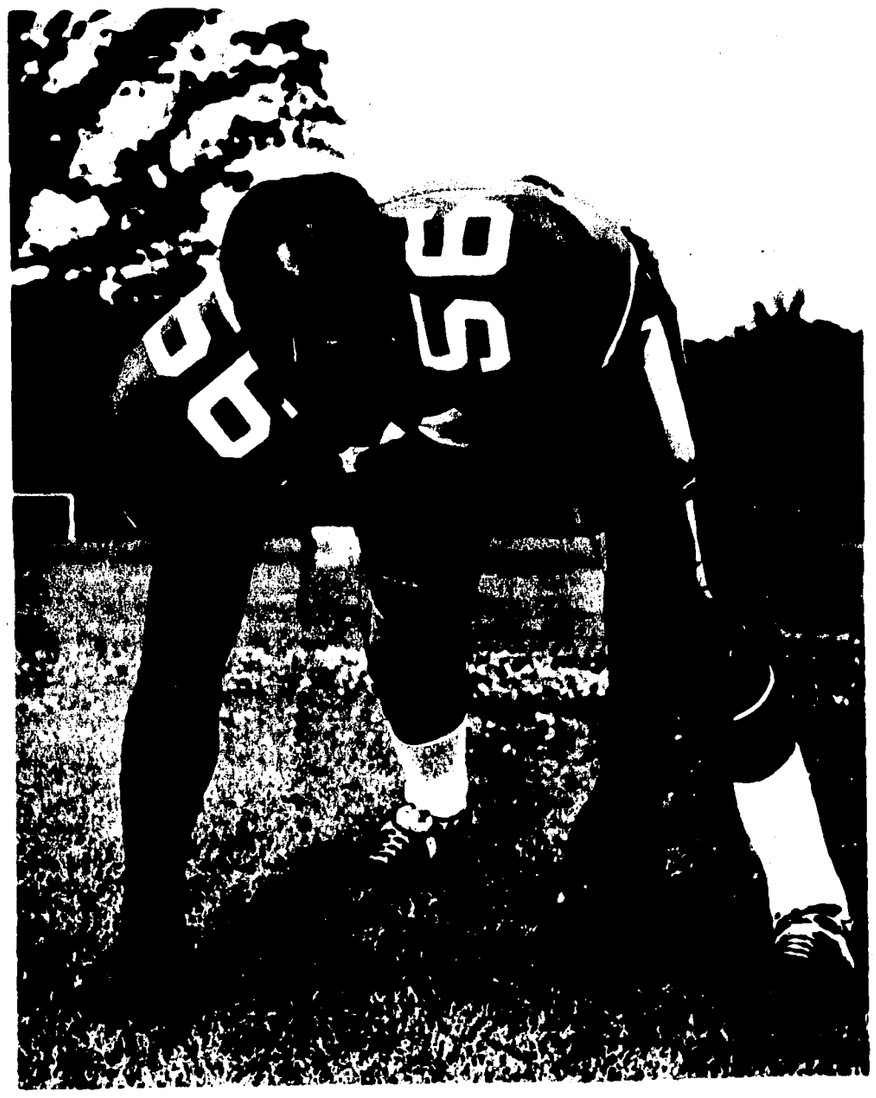

Jim Spavital has his mongooses (mongeese?).

A mongoose in Spavital's dictionary is a football player with blood in his eye . . . Sullivan (qualifies).

Sullivan, son of Mrs. Oletha Sullivan of Fulton, is a rookie in the Canada Football League, playing with the Winnipeg Bombers as a tackle. The 6-4, 245-lb., football player is a starter in Canada after laying off of competition for a year as a defensive line coach for Lincoln University.

"I like playing it rough and tough," says Sullivan. "I think I can fit the bill as a mongoose. I also think my attitude is right. All I can do is go out there and give 110 per cent. After staying out of the game for a year, though, I have some things to catch up on. Like my pass rush and reading, the different offensive sets, for example."

Sullivan's attitude has to be good because he braved a Winnipeg winter preparing for Spavital's training grind. He sat out competitive football last year and was a defensive coach at Lincoln University with Leo Lewis. Sullivan spent his 1969 training camp with Green Bay Packers when Vince Lombardi was the general manager on and off the field.

Coach 'satisfied' with 3-0 shutout

BOSTON (AP) — New England has pulled within two points of the East Division-leading Cleveland Crusaders in the World Hockey Association and Whalers' Coach Jack Kelley pronounced himself "very satisfied" with his team's 3-0 shutout of the Crusaders at Boston Garden Monday night.

It was the only pro hockey game scheduled.

Al Smith registered his first shutout in goal, turning aside 24 shots.

Cleveland's cause was aided by the superb goaltending of Gerry Cheevers, the former Boston Bruin returning here for the first time since he jumped to the WHA. Cheevers had 28 saves.

"I was very satisfied with the win," said Kelley after the game. "With a team like Cleveland you're not going to get many goals and the guy between the pipes (Cheevers) is a good reason why.

Duck callers contest gets underway

STUTTGART, Ark. (AP) — The 37th annual World Championship Duck Calling Contest will get under way here at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The event is sponsored by the Stuttgart Chamber of Commerce.

There will be contests for four titles — junior world, state, women's world and world champion.

Kentucky coach to be replaced

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky Athletic Board voted Monday night not to renew the contract of head football Coach John Ray.

UK President Otis Singletary said that he will appoint a screening committee "right away" to begin looking for Ray's successor. He indicated the committee would be headed by Athletic Director Harry Lancaster.

No target date has been set to name a new coach, according to Singletary. "My view is that we ought to move as rapidly as possible on this, though," he said.

Ray's four-year contract is due to expire Dec. 12. During his career at Kentucky his teams compiled a 10-33 record. His 3-8 showings this season and last were his best.

Reviewing his four-year struggle Monday night, Ray said, "It's been a very trying experience and educational one."

Jonesboro-Hot Springs share division title

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The decision to declare Jonesboro and Hot Springs cochampions of Class AAA is final, Johnnie Burnett, executive director of the Arkansas Activities Association, said Monday.

Burnett said that after reading the reports and conferring with Jerry Hall, AAA coordinator of athletic activities, that he agreed "100 per cent with the schools involved, the game officials and the AAA coordinator that they acted wisely in ending the game after 78 minutes..."

Jonesboro and Hot Springs played to a 14-14 tie Friday night in the mud at Hot Springs in a game that lasted through three 10-minute overtimes.

Burnett pointed out that Hot Springs had not protested the game, but said a protest would have been wasted since the association "has absolutely no authority to reverse a decision made by the game official."

Burnett had asked that the game referee, officials from both schools and Hall to submit written reports on the game.

Burnett said Hall's report said the game was "officially halted by the referee with the mutual consent of both coaches to consult the AAA."

Coach Bobby Hannon of Hot Springs had said he did not agree to stop the game.

"The referee and both coaches talked with the AAA representative by telephone," Hall's report said. "A mutual agreement was sought by AAA representative as to what to do. The coaches did not mutually agree to halt the game, but did agree to abide by the decision of the AAA representative and the referee. The AAA representative then conferred with the referee as to the condition of playing field, the welfare of players involved and other factors. The decision was reached that the game be stopped and that a suitable trophy be awarded to both teams."

Burnett said the AAA rules indicated that playoff games that end in a tie will end when a team scores in a sudden-death overtime. He said, however, that other rules and regulations had to be considered including a provision that says the high school football season in Arkansas shall end on the Saturday following the fourth Thursday of November.

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Herve Filion, harness racing's leading driver, set an all-time record of 544 victories in one year when he scored with Eden All in the fifth race at Roosevelt Raceway on Monday night.

The 32-year-old Canadian-born driver broke his own world record of 543 which he had set on Dec. 31, 1971.

Eden All, a pacer, was Filion's third winner on the card.

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Flames have added some experience in a National Hockey League trade with the Detroit Red Wings.

General Manager Cliff Fletcher of the Flames announced late Monday that the Flames have acquired right wing Leon Rochefort, a 33-year-old veteran of five NHL teams, in exchange for Bill Hogaboam, a 22-year-old center.

Rochefort had two goals and four assists in 20 games with Detroit. Hogaboam will report to Detroit's American Hockey League Virginia club.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The United States took sole possession of second place in the 20th World Amateur Baseball Tournament, defeating Nicaragua 4-3 in 10 innings Monday night.

Jeff Malinoff walked with the bases full and two outs, scoring Bob Tucker with the deciding run.

Jay Smith won his fourth game without a setback after taking over from Steve Bausmiller in the ninth.

MONTICELLO, Ark. (AP) — Charlie Johnson flipped in 22 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to pace the University of Arkansas at Little Rock to a 69-55 victory over the University of Arkansas at Monticello in college basketball here Monday night.

UAM came as close at 30-28 at the half but Johnson led the Trojans' charge in the second half that secured the victory.

UAM was led by Harold Goffin with 16 points.

The Hope Bobkittens evened their season record at one win, one loss last night with a strong 31-20 victory over Nashville. Also playing were the Kitty Cats, who dropped a 41-21 decision to the Nashville Junior Girls.

The Bobkittens never trailed after Dennis Washington hit the games first basket to give Hope a 2-0 lead.

Cary Mitchell scored six points and Washington four as Hope led 10-5 after one period.

The Nashville Juniors struggled to overcome the deficit, but failed as they trailed 16-12 at halftime.

In the second half the Bobkittens showed a stout defense and pulled away to the 31-20 final score.

Washington led all scorers with 12 points, while Mitchell finished with 10.

Richard Hughes topped Nashville with 8 points.

Earlier in the evening, the Kitty Cats were unable to score consistently and lost their third game.

Judy Click scored 19 points to space a 25-9 Nashville halftime lead.

In the second half the Kitty Cats were still cold from the field as Nashville won easily, 41-21.

Click totaled 25 points, while Barbie Watson scored 17 for Hope.

Tonight McNeil comes to town to face the Bobcats and Lady Cats. The Lady Cats will be fighting to defend their 4-0 season record.

Leaks chasing rushing title

DALLAS (AP) — Texas' Roosevelt Leaks, barring a stunning day by Southern Methodist's Alvin Maxson Saturday against Texas Christian, will become the third sophomore in a row to capture the Southwest Conference rushing title.

Leaks completed his season with an average of 109.9 yards per game. Arkansas junior Dickey Morton finished second at 108.0 yards per outing.

Maxson must gain 270 yards in the Mustang finale against Texas Christian to regain the title he won as a sophomore. Texas Tech senior Doug McCutchen, the 1970 rushing king, completed his career Saturday and ranks No. 10 among the 1972 rushers.

Morton, playing in more games than Leaks, became the third-leading seasonal yardage gainer in SWC history, totaling 1,188 yards, His 272 attempts for the year fell one shy of the record 243 rushes by Rice's Stahle Vincent last year.

Leaks missed by a single yard becoming the fifth 1,100-yard gainer in SWC history. He totaled 1,099 for the year. His seasonal total was the sixth best ever in the conference and the best ever turned in by a sophomore.

Dolphin game ends in circus atmosphere

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Young Otto Stowe streaked out of Paul Warfield's shadow to catch two touchdown passes for Miami's all-winning Dolphins and vowed not to remain backstage much longer.

"I love playing in Miami and winning is wonderful," said the sophomore pro from Iowa State, "but I'm not planning to sit on the bench for another season."

With the incomparable Warfield resting an injured leg, Stowe ran past befuddled St. Louis cornerback Norm Thompson to catch a 37-yard bomb from Earl Morrall and a 27-yarder from Jim Del Gaizo.

Miami bullied the Cardinals 31-10 in Monday night's laughable National Football League mismatch. It ended in a circus atmosphere with fans running amid players during the closing minutes while ABC-TV cameras worked at avoiding the exhibitionists.

"These fans are crazy," said sportscaster Howard Cosell, who turned a threatening letter from a Miami follower over to the FBI earlier in the weekend.

"It took cops and police dogs to handle them. This town has gone mad, but we didn't show those nuts on TV. We don't want this to start all over the country."

The Dolphins are 11-0, three games from becoming the NFL's first undefeated regular season team since the 1942 Chicago Bears. Ahead on the schedule are New England, the New York Giants and Baltimore.

Stowe blazed past the napping Thompson and was as lonely as a hermit for the first touchdown shot from Morrall. Thompson later was carried bodily into the end zone from five yards out as Jim Kiick smashed for another score.

Then, with the second-year defenseman from Utah on the ropes, Stowe hit him again as backup quarterback Del Gaizo arched the football into his uncontended arms.

Morrall hit 12 of 19 passes for 210 yards against the 2-8-1 Cards.

The Dolphins, who began operations in 1966, reached a milestone Monday night. They hit the .500 mark at 46-46-1 in their seventh season, the earliest an expansion team has ever made it.

Shula, in his third season at Miami, is an incredible 31-7-1.

Shula admitted Monday night's effort "wasn't very artistic at the start, but the defense kept the offense in the game until we got our running game going in the second half."

Larry Csonka pounded for 114 yards in 16 carries, Mercury Morris made 55 in 16 and Kiick chipped in with 25 in eight as the three-back running offense mauled the Cardinals.

Pittsburgh coach is fired

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Carl DePasqua, who took the job as Pitt football coach when none of the so-called big names would risk it, has been fired, and the search is on for a successor with "impact."

Casimir Myslinksi, Pitt's athletic director, made the announcement Monday, two days after the Panthers concluded a 1-10 season with a loss to Penn State.

"I hope to get somebody with a big name, somebody with impact," said Myslinski, who had the same aim four years ago before hiring the relatively obscure DePasqua.

"If I can get a coach who can make people believe he is going to win," he added, "then I expect more people in the stands and I expect better recruiting."

Redskins' lineman shows courage of his convictions

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A case can be made for Ray Schoenke having the courage of his convictions and the courage of a gladiator in equal doses.

Every Sunday afternoon, before the great howl in the football bowl, Schoenke sends forth his 6-4, 150-pound body into the crunch of orgiastic combat. He plays offensive line for the Washington Redskins. But he is playing less than ever, however.

After having been a starter at either left guard or left tackle for the last three years, Schoenke is now second string. Perhaps better players at those positions have relegated Schoenke to second-class Redskin.

Schoenke, however, like most athletes, believes he is superior to his competition. "I think I'm good enough to still be starting," he said.

He would like to think that his political work outside of football has neither interfered with his cleated activities nor negatively influenced his coach.

Schoenke is chairman of "Athletes for McGovern" and co-chairman of "McGovern for President-Montgomery County, Md."

Redskin coach George Allen can be seen around Washington on campaign posters in support of President Richard Nixon.

"It's possible that people think I might not be giving enough time to football because of my political work," said Schoenke. "But that's not true. I've kept up my full responsibilities to the team."

He says he sees no point

Ray Schoenke

in relating his current bench status with his politicking. "It might make smoke out of something," he said. "I don't see any point to it. The coach has the power, he's in the driver's seat. And look, we're winning. The coach's job is to produce a winning team and Coach Allen has."

Schoenke, 31, a nine-year NFL veteran and Southern Methodist University graduate, knew when he decided to support McGovern a year-and-a-half ago that "it was taking a chance, under the circumstances."

He did not mean simply football. Schoenke also has an investment and insurance company, Ray Schoenke and Associates, in the Washington area. He says many of his clients "are against McGovern," as well as being football fans. Schoenke says his extra-football work has not hurt his business at all.

"I think the same can be true for my teammates," he said. "I think they respect me for being willing to stand up. They know I'm sincere in my belief for McGovern and in his cause. Some of the Redskins are Nixon men and some are McGovern men. There has been no personality or political conflicts because of it."

Schoenke personally canvasses door-to-door when he has time, helps with voter registration and makes some fund-raising speeches. But his activities are severely limited now by his football commitment. So he has delegated authority to ease his burden among campaign workers (and Mark Reza, a non-athlete, now does much of the detail work in the Athletes for McGovern committee).

Schoenke has helped persuade many athletes, such as the Oakland Athletics' Sal Bando and Bill Bradley of the Knicks, to publicly support McGovern. He thinks athletes can be important spokesmen. No longer can they or should they be considered simply dumb jocks, he said.

"When people see this tough guy, who is a success in his field, committed to something, volunteering his time and energy, well, I think they want to at least stop and listen to what the man has to say," he said.

"I've seen this when Eddie Hinton of the Colts spoke on behalf of McGovern before 12,000 people in Columbia, Md. Or Ed Podolak of the Chiefs talking to Wisconsin farmers, since he grew up on a farm. Or Marv Fleming of the Dolphins, who had visited in Vietnam, talking about guys dying over there. These guys aren't just props, they are citizens with convictions."

Weismuller: 'I was better than Sptiz'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — "I was better than Mark Spitz," says former Olympic hero and motion picture star Johnny Weissmuller.

Weissmuller, now 68 and running a swimming pool business in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., made the comparison of himself with the current Olympic hero, Spitz, by phone to the Indianapolis News.

The man who played Tarzan of the motion pictures and Jungle Jim of television has evidence to support his contention, even though Spitz, a former Indiana University star swimmer, won seven gold medals in the Olympics at Munich last September.

Weissmuller won five gold medals, three at Paris in 1924 and two at Amsterdam in 1928.

"I never lost a race," said Weissmuller. "Even when I was swimming at the YMCA. And besides, four of the events Spitz won medals in didn't even exist when I swam in the Olympics."

Weissmuller added, "Spitz is a sprinter. I set 67 world records in distance events, from 50 yards to 880 yards.

"Besides," he said, "It's easier to go faster now. They don't have to touch with their hand now on a turn. They just flip and push off. That's worth a fraction of a second. And the pools are deeper now and the platform is higher, so they gain a couple of strokes entering the water."

Weissmuller wouldn't say so openly, but sounded a bit miffed at the commercial success that is headed Spitz' way. Two years after his last Olympics performance, Weissmuller's coach got him a swimsuit contract that earned him $500 a week. A short time later he made the first of his 19 movies.

"Easy work," he said of the pictures. "I got to swim and I didn't have to say much. We just had to keep doing the scenes over and over because the animals never did what they were supposed to."

Weissmuller wouldn't guess how successful the handsome Spitz might be in films. "It depends on what the William Morris Agency people do for him. They handled me, too. I was in Mexico City when Spitz lost four years ago. This summer I sat with his parents in Munich, but he ignored me. I think it was jealousy on his part."

Spitz and Weissmuller will get a chance to get together and iron out their differences next month when Spitz' seven gold medals go on display at the International Swimming Hall of Fame in Fort Lauderdale, where Weissmuller is chairman of the board.

Red-hot Ohio State hopes to end UCLA championship reign

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State's red-hot sophomores of 1971 hope to get the chance this season that they missed out on last season—that of dethroning UCLA as the national collegiate basketball champion.

A year ago the Scarlet and Gray, led by Luke Witte and Alan Hornyak, were given an excellent chance of ending UCLA's reign. They failed to qualify for the NCAA national championship postseason tournament when Minnesota beat them out for the Big Ten title.

Now seniors, Witte and Hornyak combined for 47 points Tuesday night in leading Ohio State to a 92-81 opening game victory over Wisconsin-Milwaukee. The 7-foot Witte scored 24 points and 15 rebounds for the Buckeyes, 10th-ranked in the pre-season Associated Press poll. Hornyak hit for 23 points.

"We did some things reasonably well, like play about 15 minutes without an error, but it was a sometime thing," commented Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor. "Part of that might have been because of their zone. It destroyed our tempo."

North Carolina State, No. 8 in the AP poll, trounced Appalachian State, 130-53 with star soph David Thompson tossing in 33 points and snaring 13 rebounds. In other games involving the AP Top Twenty, No. 15 Houston trampled Southern Mississippi, 104-67 and No. 17, Kansas State favored to win the Big Eight, beat San Diego State 79-67.

Ronald Brown converted two free throws with 13 seconds left to give Oklahoma City an 82-81 squeaker over Texas-Arlington and Tulsa overcame Samford 100-86 with Willie Biles showing the way for the Hurricane with 41 points.

Soph Henry Williams hit for 35 points in leading Jacksonville to a 102-94 triumph over William and Mary. Oklahoma defeated Indiana State 94-84, Texas-El Paso edged New Mexico State 56-54, Georgetown, D.C., shaded St.Francis, Pa., 61-60.

—Right fielder Cesar Geronimo of the Cincinnati Reds batted .220 in 94 games with Houston in 1971. This year, Cesar hit .275 in 120 games for the Reds.

Miller wins golf classic

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — The absence of Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer made it easier for Johnny Miller to win the $125,000 Heritage Golf Classic on Monday.

Miller said so himself.

"Coming into the last couple of holes, you know, anything can happen," he said.

"But I felt I could handle those guys around me (the challengers), except maybe Tom Weiskopf. You know, most of them are young guys and I figured I could beat them.

"But it would be something else if you're coming into the last few holes and Arnold or Jack or Lee is there.

"Those guys—they're the best players in the world—they put the pressure on you."

But they weren't playing in this one, and Miller casually sauntered off with a front-running victory, his second on the pro golf tour and also his second, unofficially, in as many weeks.

He won an unofficial title in New Zealand just a week ago, a victory that the 25-year-old Miller said set him up for the triumph on the 6,565-yard Harbour Town Golf Links, one of the toughest courses the touring pros play all year.

"Winning in New Zealand gave me the confidence I needed," he said.

The blond Californian, now representing a club on this resort island, started the weather-delayed final round Monday with a one-stroke lead. He ran off three consecutive birdies en route to a one-under-par 70, and finished the 72 holes with a three-under-par total of 281.

The only drama came on the final two holes.

The veteran Weiskopf, who finished alone in second just one stroke behind Miller after shooting a brilliant 66 Monday that was built on a string of seven consecutive threes, was in the clubhouse with a 282 when Miller came to the last two holes.

He bogeyed the 17th from a bunker, and went to the tough 18th hole needing a par to win. He reached the green in two, but needed two putts to salvage his par from 35 feet—the last an 18-incher.

Former PGA champion Bobby Nichols, rookie Lon Hinkle and youthful amateur Ben Crenshaw tied for third at 283. Crenshaw and Nichols each had final round 67s and Hinkle shot a 71.

So. State downs East Texas

COMMERCE, Tex. (AP) — Southern State College rolled to a 73-58 victory over East Texas State in college basketball here Monday night.

SSC broke a 6-6 tie early in the game and led the rest of the way.

Johnny White and Larry Banks hit 18 points each for the Muleriders.

SFA DOWNS REDDIES

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) — Stephen F. Austin built up a 53-37 halftime lead and rolled to a 103-87 victory over the Henderson Reddies in college basketball here Monday night.

SFA was led by Richard Dorsey and Robert Gords, who scored 22 points each.

Henderson, which was led by Sam Witherspoon's 20 points, was able to keep it close in the second half with each team scoring 50 points.

Special draft is suggested

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The owner of the San Diego Conquistadors says American Basketball Association owners will meet in Louisville Dec. 11 and may hold a special draft of college underclassmen.

Leonard Bloom said Monday his first-year team would have the first pick in such a draft, as well as the No. 1 choice in the regular year-end draft of college seniors.

Two months ago ABA owners voted against a special draft of underclassmen. "But things were different then," Bloom said.

"It looked as though a merger with the NBA was right around the corner, and the league was willing to go along, to avoid anything that might strain the issue.

What can 86-year-old eat?

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have enjoyed reading your column and thought you might solve my problem. I have dieted for many years for chronic colitis — recently quite a generous diet. Being anemic for a long time I ate liver until it made me sick and I changed to lean beef, besides peas, green beans and so forth. Now—no more liver shots as before and on the last test I had a perfect report. Now, they tell me I have hardening of the arteries and must not eat grease. I am almost 86 years of age and my present problem is what may I eat?

I never eat fat meat or very little meat except beef. How about butter, cheddar cheese — medium aged, margarine, corn oil, 2 per cent milk and sherbet Your advice will be greatly appreciated.

Dear Reader — Almost everyone who is 86 years of age has some hardening of the arteries (atherosclerosis). There is no reason you can't eat lean meat. In fact, lean round steak is relatively low in fat content, if you trim away all of the fat before you cook it and broil it in a lightly oiled pan or one that has been treated with a no-stick preparation, so you don't have to use fat for deep frying. Only about one-third of the calories in lean round steak are from fat, and if you want to look at it in terms of weight measurement, only five per cent of the weight of lean round steak after the visible fat has been removed is fat. This is within the limits commonly set for the amount of fat people can eat in relationship to the problem of hardening of the arteries.

The only difficulties with meat such as beef is that it is relatively low in polyunsaturated fat and a little higher in the saturated fats than many heart specialists would like; therefore, one shouldn't eat excessive amounts. But there isn't any reason that you can't use lean meats such as lean round steak, bottom round, or rump roasts in which the fat has been removed before preparing it.

You can also use fryer chicken and fish. By alternating between these three types of meats—beef, fish and chicken—you should be doing rather well. Beef is a much better choice than butter or any of the processed cheeses such as cheddar cheese.

The softer margarines are fine in terms of decreasing the amount of saturated fat in your diet, but they are still all 100 per cent fat, so you don't want to use too much of them. Two per cent milk is an improvement over whole milk in terms of limiting fat in the diet, but one per cent milk is better and the fortified milk preparations available in most places are excellent. Sherbet would be fine if you can afford the calories, and I presume you can. I think you should not become overzealous and eliminate meat entirely from your diet and think you should try to get beef, chicken or fish at least once or twice a day as long as you use the lean meat, fish and chicken products. From your letter I would say you are doing very well at 86 years of age and the real problem is to be sure you have a balanced diet to provide enough protein, vitamins and minerals. Be sure and have a check-up regularly to make certain that your anemia doesn't return and sneak up on you.

Federal guidelines explained

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers and members of his cabinet met Monday with officials of the Federal Regional Council, who explained how guidelines handed down by federal agencies apply to federally funded programs operating in Arkansas.

The meeting was to "clear up potential misunderstandings on federal guidelines of various programs which receive federal funds," said Howard D. McMahan of Dallas, Tex., regional director for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and chairman of the council.

Revenue sharing, health planning and federal requirements for projects receiving federal funds were among the topics discussed at the meeting.

Thomas McRae, Bumpers' staff coordinator, said after the meeting that one of the primary topics of discussion was whether an agency utilizing federal funds must maintain a separate cash fund account.

Bumpers has called for abolition of most separate cash fund accounts maintained by state agencies. He has said he probably will ask the legislature to enact legislation that would require all such funds to be placed in the state treasury in separate accounts.

Federal officials told Bumpers Monday his plan of placing the funds in the treasury was preferable to the separate cash accounts.

McRae told newsmen that on a given day some of the cash accounts may have in them as much as $1 million.

The officials also told Bumpers that the revenue-sharing bill recently enacted by Congress would result in the loss of some federal revenues to various programs.

McRae said state officials particularly were concerned about loss of funds for the state's juvenile services programs.

"Funds are very likely to be lost in this area," McRae said. "It is going to be very difficult to redistribute state revenues to carry on a number of our juvenile services programs which are now receiving federal funds."

On other topics, the officials said an effort should be made to eliminate overlapping of responsibilities in the field of health planning in the state and that the state Employment Security Division, which operates with federal funds, did not have to be housed in its own separate building.

There has been talk of locating the state ESD office in a new state office building that also would house other state agencies.

Mice to be sacrificed for science on Apollo

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Six mice about the size of a man's thumb will go to the moon with Apollo 17, but it won't be a happy trip for the small rodents. They'll travel steerage class all the way, with no view, no service and no future when they return.

The animals, which roamed a California desert only a short while ago, are called pocket mice.

They will travel to the moon and back in individual plastic cylinders sealed in an airtight aluminum box and stored in a closed compartment aboard Apollo 17. Their trip will be made in total darkness and scientists expect they'll spend most of the time sleeping.

Although they'll never get a view of where they've been, scientists hope the mice will contribute to man's future exploration of space.

Dr. David Winter, director of Life Sciences at the Ames Research Center, said that during the trip the mice, along with the three astronauts aboard, will be bombarded by cosmic radiation from deep space.

High energy particles will penetrate the spacecraft, the mice and the men once Apollo 17 soars above the Van Allen Belt that protects earth from such radiation.

When the mice return, they will be sacrificed and scientists will spend months studying their pea-sized brains in a search for damage caused by the radiation.

"This will give us a chance to see the effects of cosmic radiation on a biological species," says Winter. "Right now, we have no data points at all."

Knowledge of how cosmic radiation can affect brain tissue will be vital when man one day begins to explore distant planets, which will require months of space travel to reach.

Astronauts traveling between the earth and moon have reported seeing bursts of light and flashes during periods when their space cabin was dark. Scientists believe these are caused by heavy radiation particles impacting either the visual centers of the brain or the retinas of their eyes.

Moon missions are too short for the astronauts to be seriously affected by the cosmic rays, but scientists don't know what the effects would be of a long-term flight through deep space.

REWARD OFFERED

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Relatives of Mrs. Shirley E. Lynn, 30, who was found shot to death Nov. 1 beside Woodruff Road in Sylvan Hills, have offerd a $3,000 reward for information leading to arrest and conviction of her slayer.

Mrs. Lynn apparently was shot about 3:30 p.m. while her husband, Capt. Fredric M. Lynn, 30, was at the Little Rock Air Force Base.

Her parents live in California.

The whole reason for false-carding is that you want to fool your opponent and give him a problem. The declarer who false-cards automatically frequently helps his opponents.

South was one of these automatic false-carders. He was delighted with the spade lead since his one weakness was the heart suit. He dropped his ace of spades on East's 10 and promptly led the 10 of clubs for a finesse.

East took his king and returned the five of hearts. South rose with the queen but it was all over for South. The defense added five heart tricks to the club trick already in the bag.

"Nice shift," said South. "I was sure you would return your partner's suit."

East said nothing on the theory that it never pays to educate your opponents, but South's false-card of the spade ace had been a dead giveaway. East knew that West had not led away from king-queen-jack so that the ace play marked South with at least the king.

If South had simply won the first spade with his queen, East would have had a really tough decision. The queen play might well have been from king-queen-small in which case the spade return would have been the winning defensive play.

Television's 'bold year'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Next March the communications subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee will inspect this year's broadcasting record as described by the Federal Communications Commission.

And the annual FCC report may well cover the delicate topic of who's been naughty or nice this year in network television—a bold year in which homosexuality, lesbianism, venereal disease and abortion finally took their places in the ranks of acceptable television story themes.

Sen. John Pastore, chairman of the Senate subcommittee, says he hasn't seen any indication yet that the networks are using sexually oriented story themes just to boost rating points.

"I can't spot it as yet," the Rhode Island Democrat said last week in a telephone interview from his home state, where he was working and resting during the Senate's post-election break.

"But naturally, when I go back to Washington I'm going to have discussions with Dean Burch (FCC chairman) and the rest of the commission to find out their reaction to what's going on," he said.

What could develop when Pastore's subcommittee meets next year to begin hearings on the FCC's annual report?

"Only the arousing of public opinion," he said. "Frankly, there've been some things that have shocked me. There have been four-letter words used on radio. Of course, they haven't gone that far on television.

"They have used four-letter words on television, but they've (the networks) 'bleeped' them out. At least they've had the decency to do that. But, you know, someday they're not going to do that.

"The big question is how far we're going to go with this," Pastore said, referring to television's new permissiveness. "The only thing I can do is to keep it more or less in the area of public attention, to make the public know exactly what is going on."

He emphasized that Congress and the government can't by law "regulate programming. As a matter of law, we can't get into the area of censorship, and nobody cares to get into that."

However, he observed, television "is a highly competitive field and, as ideas become shopworn, they (producers) come into something that gets a little bolder and bolder.

"And then it's going to get more and more resque. Now homosexuality and lesbianism, I suppose, is a realism of life and it's amongst us. And some people are very much offended by programs about these topics.

"But just how they (the networks) are going to handle it is a hard thing to say," Pastore mused. "I would hope that it doesn't get out of hand."

Officials are divided over gun control

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
AP Urban Affairs Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The nation's two largest organizations of city officials — the National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors — are divided on the issue of gun control legislation, putting their joint lobbying staff in a delicate position.

The Public Safety Committee of the League created the difficulty Monday, the first day of the league's four-day annual meeting here.

By a voice vote, the committee not only rejected the stiff gun control resolution passed by the Conference of Mayors last June, but also deleted the weak resolution passed by the League last year. That one had called for federal laws against interstate sale of all firearms and mandatory minimum sentences of 10 years for use of a firearm in any crime.

As it stands now, the League's policy statement does not mention gun control legislation. The Conference of Mayors, however, called in June for national legislation against the manufacture, importation, sale and private possession of handguns except by law enforcement personnel, military and sportsmen's clubs, a national handgun registration law, state registration for all firearms and state licensing for persons who carry guns.

The difference stems from the nature of the two organizations. The League represents 15,000 cities, with no limit on their size, so that even small towns are represented. The U.S. Conference of Mayors is open only to chief executives of cities over 30,000 persons.

The mayors and other city officials divide on this issue largely along big city and small town lines.

Unless a change is made in the League's Resolutions Committee meeting late today or the final general session on Thursday, the division will force Washington lobbyists for the League and the Conference to tread a narrow line. The staffs of the two organizations were merged in 1969, for economy and greater clout.

Allen E. Pritchard Jr., executive vice president of the National League of Cities, said, "It's unusual, but it's not the first time one group has had a policy and the other has had none on the same issue.

Calley makes plea for his freedom

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Lt. William L. Calley Jr., who has spent much of the last 19 months in the home that is his prison, playing with pets and puttering in the garden, has made a plea for clemency.

Calley, convicted in March 1971 of the murders of 22 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai, answered questions Monday from the three-man Army Clemency and Parole Board, which flew here from Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

The officers walked quickly from the red-brick apartment after their private session with Calley, which lasted nearly two hours. Waiting military cars whisked them away before newsmen could question them.

The clemency officers were Lt. Col. Harvey C. Johnson, Capt. James E. Brawner and Capt. Ray V. Smith.

The clemency board's report when completed will be sent to the commander at Ft. Benning and then will go directly to the Army's provost marshal general.

In a separate proceeding, the U.S. Court of Military Review will convene at Falls Church, Va., on Monday to hear a brief contending that Calley's court-martial contained at least 32 errors of fact. It is part of the automatic appeal of his sentence.

Calley, a 29-year-old platoon leader, was sentenced to life imprisonment, but that term was later reduced to 20 years.

After the nationwide reaction to Calley's conviction and sentence, President Nixon ordered him removed from the stockade at Ft. Benning and returned to his apartment, where is guarded continuously by a military policeman.

Calley spends his days tending pets — a beagle and a minah bird, whose raucous cries can be heard by neighbors — and puttering in his garden. He has few visitors now.

Revenue-sharing: The key to keep city hall doors open

By LINDEL HUTSON
Associated Press Writer

The key to keeping the doors of many Arkansas city halls open may hinge on receipt of revenue-sharing checks which the federal government begins mailing Dec. 1.

Although a Commerce Department survey claims the financial situation of state and local government throughout the country has improved since the revenue sharing bill was introduced three years ago, many Arkansas mayors beg to differ.

"Our financial situation has worsened," says Pine Bluff Mayor Austin Franks. "If it wasn't for revenue sharing we would have a hard time opening the doors."

Franks' comments are generally echoed by other mayors around the state. Inflation continues to eat at the city treasury, the mayors say, and revenue-sharing funds are desperately needed.

On the state level, the financial situation has improved. But Tom McRae, an aide to Gov. Dale Bumpers, says the federal funds are "certainly" still needed. The funds will be used for one-time only expenses, he said.

The compromise bill for sharing federal revenues with states and local governments calls for distribution this calendar year of $18.3 million to the state of Arkansas and $36.7 million to local governmental units in the state.

North Little Rock Mayor W.F. Laman says the cost of living has increased more than the city has been able to increase salaries. And the cost of labor is going up.

"We're fighting to hold our own," Laman said. "In some areas we're slipping backward. We can't pay sufficient salary to hold people. We've lost 92 employes through the first 10 months of this year."

But in many instances, revenue-sharing money will not be going to hire additional employes or give pay hikes. For the most part the federal money will go for capital improvements such as streets, new fire stations, city garages, outdoor recreation, and, in the case of Blytheville, for a new city bus.

Nobody knows how long the federal government is going to be giving away revenue-sharing dollars. The first five years of the program are certain. What happens after that is anybody's guess.

At Texarkana, City Manager Ron Copeland says the Arkansas-side of the border city plans to hold the estimated $250,000 expected from revenue sharing apart from normal operating costs.

"We're going to plan a program to use it outside our present city budget. We'll probably use it for only capital improvements or capital outlay-type things. we're going to do our best not to add personnel and make a dependency on this money," Copeland said.

"We definitely need revenue sharing," said Jonesboro Mayor Stallings. "We intend to use it for capital improvements—equipment, possibly for a new city shop.

"We don't know how long revenue sharing will be a reality. They say it is for five years," Stallings said. "But it can change within that five years."

For the general fund, many cities and counties hoping for additional general turnback funds from the state.

At the recent Arkansas Municipal League Convention in Hot Springs, Blytheville Mayor Tom Little, newly-elected president of the league, called on the cities and counties to work together to form a united front to the legislature to get additional state revenue.

Little said one of the main objectives for the Mayors Association and Municipal League this year will be an attempt to get the legislature to provide 4 per cent of the state's general revenue to the cities and 3 per cent to the counties.

However, Gov. Dale Bumpers has said he is not in favor of the proposal to allot seven per cent of the state's revenue to cities and counties.

The three-part formula used in Washington for handing out revenue sharing funds is based on population, the income level of the city and the tax effort within the city.

"As I understand the formula," Little said, "the tax base was one of three categories. We are, and have been, at our maximum tax base for years and years. We not only need revenue sharing but also more general fund turnback from the state."

Little said he hopes to get a good reception from the legislature on the city-county fund idea.

He said the state's growth has to be attributed to the jobs the cities are doing, and "if Arkansas is to continue to grow the cities have to be in a financial condition to attract people and give the services the people demand."

No local officials give any hope that revenue sharing will bring enough financial relief for the municipalities to consider a local tax cut.

Most say they're afraid to cut taxes because, again, there is no guarantee of continued revenue-sharing funds after five years.

And since revenue-sharing dollars are doled out partly in proportion to the local tax effort, any decrease in taxes would seemingly create a subsequent decrease in revenue-sharing funds.

"There is no possibility of a tax cut," Copeland said. "If you cut taxes you would in effect be cutting your revenue sharing."

Copeland said the categories for revenue sharing use are so general "you can use it for about anything you want."

The only things for which the federal funds cannot be used, Copeland said, are education and to match other federal grants.

Arkansas' cities are not involved with local school operations, thus no hardship would apparently come about because of that restriction.

The executive director of the Association of Arkansas Counties, Frank Bizzell, said that at the county level the need for funds is still as bad, if not worse, than three years ago because of inflation. "The turnbacks from the state have been the same, and our tax base has not grown that much," he said.

The county association is conducting a symposium in Little Rock Monday at 3 p.m. at the Downtown Holiday Inn for all county officials to discuss revenue sharing. Bizzell said Ralph Tabor, director of federal affairs for the National Association of Counties in Washington, will speak at the symposium.

Bizzell said probably 90 or 95 per cent of the state's 75 counties will be using their revenue-sharing funds for capital expenditures such as for renovations to physical plants, jails, courthouses and for the creation of waste management systems.

"We are recommending that these funds be used for capital outlays," Bizzell said.

"We now have fairly lenient guidelines as far as capital outlays are concerned," he said. "After five years, there will probably be revenue sharing, but not as we have it these first five years. I can't see the federal government giving us money they don't have a lot of strings attached to."

Like the cities, Bizzell says the counties are looking for more state turnback funds for county operation and maintenance. "There's no secret which basket we're putting our eggs into," Bizzell said, referring to the state legislature. "I really think we will get a good reception from the legislature," he said. "I think they would like to see more funds spent on the local level."

He also said that a factor in the revenue sharing formula says no entity of government may receive an amount more than 90 per cent of locally generated revenues. Bizzell said there were enough counties and cities in the state receiving more than 90 per cent from revenue sharing to cause more than $4.6 million to go to the state.

Romney:
End of era nearing

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Romney's four-year crusade as secretary of Housing and Urban Development to make the government do more for the cities and do it faster, is ending.

At age 66, Romney announced Monday he'll step outside government to try to influence things in a private role by gathering round him a group of "truth seekers and communicators."

At HUD, Romney said he's learned there are built-in limitations in government which make "the achievement of fundamental reform too dependent upon a crisis."

Announcing his resignation effective with the confirmation of a successor, Romney stopped short of directly criticizing President Nixon. And he insisted he has not become disillusioned.

"Just say I have an understanding that I didn't have in 1960 or in 1969," he said.

Romney, a former president of American Motors and once governor of Michigan, said neither Nixon nor Sen. George McGovern, had approached the real issues during the presidential campaign.

He defined the real issues as the problems of the cities, the excessive concentration of union and corporate power and the expansion of the federal government.

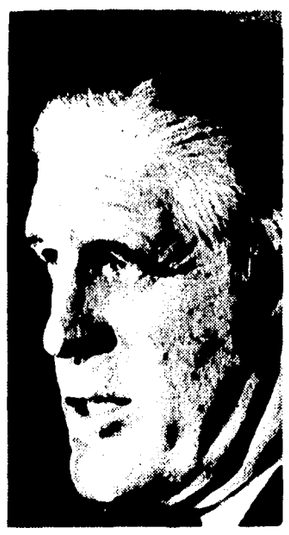

As yet, only the rough outlines are visible of Romney's plans for reforming the federal government from the outside.

Private citizens will gather information designed to lead government to public solutions of problems.

"Such a body of truth seekers and communicators could create an enlightened electorate so that the parties and their candidates would find it to their advantage to seek voter support on the basis of the real issues rather than appealing to public and frequently superficial concerns of the moment," he said.

Romney was the first high-ranking Nixon administration official to resign since the President began working on organizing and staffing his second term.

He had, however, indicated as early as last August his plans to leave, though not until after the Nov. 7 election.

GEORGE ROMNEY

Romney's frequently open unhappiness in his role as Cabinet officer stems in part from his success as the man who put new life into American Motors and as the innovative governor of one of the most populous states.

Romney has always been happiest and most effective when he has been the boss with a responsibility only to himself or his constituents.

Romney was once a missionary for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Morman) and remains a devout member.

As HUD secretary, Romney was never really trusted by Nixon's top staff. They found him the same impatient evangelist whose presidential ambitions were thwarted in 1968. They doubted his conversion and loyalty to the Nixon presidency, despite his speeches to the contrary.

A BOY DOING A MAN'S JOB in a village north of Saigon, and like tens of thousands of other South Vietnamese children, he knows nothing of the calm of peace.

U.S. to send Bangladesh more food

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has agreed to send Bangladesh an additional 100,000 tons of wheat in response to an urgent appeal from the United Nations. That lifts the total of American grant aid to former East Pakistan this year to $320 million.

This country has supplied one-third of approximately $925 million in assistance from some 28 nations to the international relief and rehabilitation effort for Bangladesh, according to C. Herbert Rees, director of South Asian affairs for the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Rees said the food prospects for Bangladesh in the period immediately ahead are gloomy. The current winter crop is likely to be poor because of an unfavorable monsoon. He said a U.N. Team estimates that, in all probability, the Bangladesh crop may run and one-half million tons below the highest crop on record.

Next to the United States, India has been the greatest contributor to Bangladesh, with more than $250 million alloted this year. But India did not anticipate that a bad monsoon there would result in a poor crop that will bring India's production far below its record 108 million tons of two years ago.

Rees said India's stock of nine and one-half million tons of food grains has been reduced to half that figure and is declining. He predicted that India will be in the world market for food grains.

Rees returned recently from his fourth inspection trip to Bangladesh this year. He said its government officials and leaders fully understand they could not have survived without the aid the United States has provided this year.

Rent watch is success

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government claims its nationwide "rent watch" has been a rousing success, preventing thousands of illegal rent increases while turning up only a handful of violations.

The Nixon administration put the rent watch into effect early this fall after Social Security benefits for retired people were increased 20 per cent. The watch was designed to prevent landlords from wiping out the Social Security gains by increasing rents.

The Internal Revenue Service investigated more than 90,000 rental units in a two-month period, finding only 24 minor violations and one violation that has been turned over to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

In addition, IRS received 2,178 complaints. It has completed investigations of 1,462 of these complaints, uncovering 404 violations, most of them so technical that they were corrected immediately.

IRS has assessed 15 landlords with penalties totalling $28,819. Four of these cases have been settled and collected and the remainder are on appeal.

IRS says the rent watch is still in effect and reports of illegal rent increases levied on the elderly receive expedited treatment.

Officials at the Cost of Living Council said the rent watch will continue as long as needed. They dismissed any notion that it would be abruptly dropped, giving landlords a chance to boost rents of old people.

Traditionally, retired persons have faced rent increases shortly after Congress raised Social Security benefits.

"The rent watch is not going to end with a bang, but with a whimper, for precisely the purpose that rents could be raised after it goes off," said one Cost of Living Council official.

An exception to the general trend during the rent watch has been in public housing, where the amount of rent hinges on a tenant's income.

Off welfare. . . back to work

By CHARLES McFADDEN
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California's able-bodied welfare recipients are beginning to trade welfare grants for pay checks under a mandatory work program, state officials say.

One-time recipients are working as auto mechanics, busboys, sheet metal workers, barbers, warehousemen and in other fields, says Bill Lawson of the Department of Human Resources Development.

In the six counties where the 4-month-old program is operating, 2,707 welfare recipients have been classified as employable, Lawson said. Of that total, 1,127 — or 42 per cent — are on regular jobs in private industry, 239 others are in training and 184 have been given "work experience assignments," he reported.

An additional 371 have been kicked off welfare rolls for refusing to take a job or training, Lawson added Monday.

Those for whom the state's unemployment office can't find a job immediately in the private sector are working for local governments in various jobs such as school crossing guards and parking lot attendants, Lawson said. Their only pay is their welfare checks.

"They're not just raking leaves," Lawson said. "It's work that needs to be done but otherwise wouldn't be done without raising taxes. And it gives them work experience, don't forget that."

The department claims more than 50 per cent of the recipients have moved into private jobs or job training and only about 7 per cent are in public service work.

Mandatory work assignments are limited to 80 hours monthly in the public service sector. Recipients who fail to accept "suitable" job offers or quit looking for private employment lose their welfare benefits, Lawson said. Gov. Ronald Reagan's administration estimates some 30,000 persons will eventually be included in the program as it is expanded to other counties.

Accidental bomb drop kills 19

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Half a dozen American planes supporting South Vietnamese troops accidentally dropped several 500-pound bombs on a populated area south of Da Nang Monday, killing 19 civilians and wounding 29, the U.S. Command announced today.

Field reports said about 10 bombs fell in the area 2½ miles west of the provincial capital of Hoi An and about 15 miles south of Da Nang.

"The cause of the accident is not known at this time," the U.S. Command said. "An investigation is being conducted."

The Command said two U.S. Air Force F4 Phantoms and four Corsairs from the 7th Fleet carriers were involved.

It was one of the worst such incidents reported in several months.

The Command said it had no other details immediately available.

Meanwhile, North Vietnamese forces kept up their heavy artillery attacks on South Vietnamese troops trying to broaden their area of control in Quang Tri province, just below the demilitarized zone.

The Saigon command reported another 600-round barrage against South Vietnamese marines who have advanced to within a mile of the Cua Viet Estuary. The command said 31 marines have been killed and 161 wounded.

Mass transit systems should not 'raid' federal highway allocations

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Funding for mass transit systems should not be dependent on raiding federal highway allocations, says the outgoing president of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

J. C. Dingwall, addressing an annual conference session Monday, said state highway officials do not oppose mass transit but are "unwilling to sacrifice federal highway funds to pay for it."

"With respect to mass transit, let us not sit back with a 'dog in the manger' attitude, but let us cooperate and assist where we can," he said.

Dingwall, who also is state highway engineer in Texas, said state road officials can lend valuable transportation knowhow to advocates of mass transit and still "hold out for the santity of the federal Highway Trust Fund."

"If it's a trust fund that mass transit needs," he said, "I say let's help them get it but with the understanding that they stop trying to break up ours."

Legislation was introduced in Congress this year to allow highway trust funds to be used for mass transit acquisitions and construction but was defeated.

Dingwall said the highway trust fund held $5.7 billion last year. Congress appropriated $600 million in fiscal 1971 and another $900 million last year but the administration impounded a third of the total.

Dingwall said highway officials must be "innovative" in solving the transportation needs of city dwellers.

One scheme to increase the mobility of the aged, the infirm and the poor, he said, might be to issue federal transportation coupons redeemable for taxi service in the same way as food stamps.

Dingwall denounded "self-serving bands of guerrillas" and the "protest subculture" in America for attacks on the highway program. He added that such "emotional attacks" are subsiding.

Federal highway aidministrator R. R. Bartelsmeyer, appearing on behalf of Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe, said the Transportation Department is attempting to help states work with available federal highway funds to tide them over until the next Congress can consider highway legislation.

Boyleing it down

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Yes, mother warned me there would be days like these. But what no one on earth seems to know is just what to do about them.

Money is easier to get than a good reputation. There is another difference, too. In the space of 3 lifetime, it is easier to rebuild a lost fortune than a lost reputation.

After 50, it is foolish for a woman to worry about how her passport picture turns out. No one else she knows will.

One of the things a policeman hates to do most is to have to arrest another policeman, no matter how guilty.

Talk is cheap. That must explain why they have so many talk shows on television.

Bald men are usually more generous to street beggars than men with a full head of hair. They know what it means to be deprived.

The average department-store shoplifter doesn't steal for sentimental reasons or as the result of a sudden irresistible impulse. He steals because he is a thief trying to get something for nothing he doesn't deserve to have.

Only men particularly favored by the gods are permitted the fate of falling in love with, and winning, a pretty, red-haired girl who also has green eyes.

A fool is a guy who goes through life stubbing his toes long after he's old enough to wear shoes.

I can never figure out which is the bigger bore — a successful, pompous lawyer or a pompous, unsuccessful lawyer.

In a group picture of small-town professional men, you can usually pick out the dentist and the undertaker because they have the most winning smiles.

When it comes to their looks, animals are judged even more unfairly than are men. Take the male wolf and male ostrich, for example. Each is a good husband and family man, when it comes to taking care of the kids. Yet, in an animal beauty contest, each would be passed over in favor of the kingly appearing lion. But the male lion is a measly, flea-scratching, lazy husband who lets his more active wife do most of the family hunting — and then insists upon dining first at the kill. Only when his royal appetite is gorged do his lioness and cubs get to take a bite.

A reader who knows my dislike for breaded veal cutlets writes in to ask, "How long would you survive in a wilderness if you had nothing but breaded veal cutlets to eat?" My answer: I'd last long enough to find a native who knew a place where they had something else on the menu. I think any man should be too proud to let breaded veal cutlets be the death of him.

People in the News

TEL AVIV (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger has contributed money to help plant a grove of trees in memory of a schoolmate.

Reuven Assor, spokesman for the Jewish National Fund, said Monday that the grove of 300 trees in the Judean hills near Jerusalem will be planted in memory of Kurth Fleischman, a schoolmate of Kissinger's in his native town of Furth, Germany.

Fleischmann, who escaped from Nazi Germany, died last year in England before realizing plans to settle in Israel.

MANILA (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos said today that he was "guided by God" when he proclaimed martial law in the Philippines to prevent a right wing coup against his government.

Addressing some 300 members of the Philippine Historical Society at the presidential palace, Marcos disclosed for the first time that he signed the martial law proclamation on Sept. 17, five days before it was put into effect.

Previously it was believed he signed the decree Sept. 21.

Marcos said he needed "the period to commune with myself and with God. I asked God for signs. He gave me several signs." It was "as if I was guided by some strange greater mind."

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Samuel L. Popkin, the Harvard professor jailed for refusing to answer questions in the Pentagon Papers case, says the Norfolk County House of Correction is "better than our worst horrible fantasises about jail."

Popkin's wife Susan reported that her husband found jail isn't as bad as expected. She quoted him as saying it is "clean and warm. There is no danger of illness, rapes or killings as in some other jails."
